Women Helping Women: SCA Practices Her Mercy Values

By Krystin Hernandez '10

The present crisis in the Democratic Republic of the Congo demands attention. Since 1998, 5.4 million people have died in the Congo, and more die each day. The country's resources are being exploited and corruption runs rampant, ravishing the nation. Consequently, Congolese women are being mass-raped as a means of control. Each day, girls as young as two are being sexually abused and left to die. Panzi Hospital, a treatment facility for victims, serves as a solitary refuge for such individuals.

I was one of the 20 SCA students who traveled to Washington D.C. to represent our outrage about the rape of women in the Congo. It was an awe-inspiring Glamour magazine article given as an English assignment that exposed this issue to us. The account of the atrocities being committed represented voices begging to be heard. The spirit of mercy spread like wildfire at SCA and the entire student body cooperatively dedicated their effort to the cause. For months the school was abuzz with ideas for fundraisers geared towards the Congo, and finally, everyone's diligent hard work paid off. We raised over $4,000 for Panzi Hospital!

Krystin Hernandez '10

The African Faith and Justice Network became aware of our efforts and invited us to attend the Congo

Joshua Williams, legislative aide to New York Senator Hillary Rodham Clinton, meets with the SCA delegation.

Global Action Conference in our nation's capital. It would allow us to personally present the funds we had raised to Dr. Denis Mukwege, the founder of Panzi Hospital.

And so our adventure began. When we arrived at the Holocaust Museum where the first conference was held, we sat among a crowd of established journalists, Congolese peoples, and Doctor Denis Mukwege himself. It became evident during an interview between Doctor Mukwege and Zainab Salbi, founder of Women for Women International, that even among a group of adult leaders, our story was very important.

Following the initial conference, we attended a seminar detailing exploitation of resources in the Congo. The most outstanding moment in the conference to all of us at SCA was the presentation of our donation to Dr. Mukwege. Sr. Patricia Wolf, President of St. Catharine Academy, introduced us to the conference and explained our efforts. After presenting the check, we had a chance to meet Dr. Mukwege and have our picture taken with him. For us, he is a hero.

Each workshop prepared us for meetings with our congress people and to encourage them to sign The International Violence Against Women's Act, guaranteeing protection for Congolese women and children. We met with Joshua Williams, legislative aide to Senator Hillary Rodham Clinton, to further discuss the legislation.

This experience for me, to say the least, has been utterly mind-blowing. Being from a country that is better off socially and economically, I never knew that such poverty, let alone barbarism, existed. Yet women are being destroyed as a symbol of power. It is absolutely appalling what such women have gone through, and continue to be plagued with every waking moment of their lives. But I can see a dim light at the end of this seemingly forsaken tunnel. From the conference, I learned that rebuilding lives isn't easy, but the Congolese people have a faith so undeniably strong that they will persevere and flourish from tragedy. I believe the hope that floods the Congo is a movement that is absolutely inspiring. ❖

MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT

The Pope's Visit Themes Support SCA's Focus

Sr. Patricia Wolf, RSM '62

In April, when His Holiness, Benedict XVI visited New York, I was fortunate to be at the Mass in Yankee Stadium and to experience the energy of 57,000 cheering and handkerchief waving people of all ages, ethnic backgrounds, and races.

On that occasion, and throughout his visit, I was unexpectedly and truly impressed by the warmth and encouraging tone which emanated from Pope Benedict's person and various addresses. As an educator leading a high school in the Catholic and Mercy tradition, I found themes in his words that resonated with my own experience and reflections. Here are two:

Communal Identity

In his meeting with Catholic educators at Catholic University, Washington D.C., Pope Benedict posed the following: "A university or school's Catholic identity is not simply a question of the number of Catholic students. It is a question of conviction. Is the faith tangible in our . . . schools? Is it given fervent expression . . . through . . . prayer, acts of charity, a concern for justice, and respect for God's creation?"

As in most professions, in education we measure outcomes, such as, Regents exam passing rate, SAT scores, college acceptances, or graduation rates. These standardized benchmarks assume the student learned something. What Pope Benedict suggests for us is a standard of measurement for articulating a communal Catholic identity. It includes, but goes beyond, the practice of having Mass for students. Communal Catholic identity is shaped by themes for daily prayer, seasonal liturgical celebrations, and the content of a four year religion curriculum for all students. It is shaped, as well, by promoting "acts of charity, a concern for justice, and respect for God's creation" as concrete expressions of faith, not just good deeds.

I believe our Catholic/Mercy identity comes alive in what has come to be known as the "Congo Campaign". At SCA, one can see how our students are profoundly moved by injustice and human suffering, and how they have come to see themselves as bearers of hope. For them, their action on behalf of the people of the Congo is personal and communal: It exposes them to Catholic social teaching, and it provides an opportunity to discover what it means to be a person of Mercy and to extend God's Mercy to others.

Accessibility

Calling Catholic education an outstanding apostolate of hope, Pope Benedict urged that Catholic education continue to be accessible to people of all social and economic strata. This is not an easy task. Yet, at St. Catharine's, we have made this very decision. Our decision is to keep our tuition affordable and to seek external financial support for students whose families find our tuition too steep.

Often, I am asked: "What is your tuition?" When I tell people it is $5,700 this year, and will be $5,850 next year, a 2.7% increase, I get a range of reactions. Some exclaim "that high!" while others say "that low!" Yet, the true "cost to educate" each student is $6,750. Currently, SCA has undergraduate alumnae at Harvard, Yale, Princeton, University of Chicago, and outstanding Catholic colleges and universities. I truly believe that this wonderful level of academic success is one outcome of our decision to make SCA accessible through tuition assistance.

I am immensely grateful to our alumnae and friends who support the Annual Fund and the Tuition Assistance and Scholarship Fund. YOU make a world of difference. You contribute, not just to SCA, but by extension, to the ongoing formation of the Catholic community.

There is much more to ponder from the visit of Pope Benedict. But for now, the goal of forging a communal Catholic identity in Mercy and committing to affordable Catholic education is challenge enough. ❖

Style + Class + Elegance: Adds Up To More Than Just Wonderful Words

Celebration of the Life of Sr. Etheldreda

By Sr. Rhea Bean, RSM

The Chapel at the Marian Woods Convent in Hartsdale, NY was hushed and expectant this past March day, as Mercy College Professor Eileen McMahon (known to many former Catharinites as Sr. Mary Reparata) approached the microphone. There was anticipation that she would give voice to the thoughts and emotions of those who were present for the funeral liturgy of Sr. Mary Etheldreda Christie.

Like participants in the preceding evening's Wake Service, attendees at the Mass of Resurrection reflected the diversity of persons whose lives had been touched by this Sister of Mercy, over the span of her ninety-five years. What was equally evident was the degree to which affection and respect for her seemed to create a common bond among those present. Surely Professor McMahon's treasury of words and flair for the dramatic would capture all of this.

And so she began: "You are going to hear some wonderful words...!"

Well, yes, we anticipated that would be so, for long before Sr. Etheldreda died, many wonderful words had been spoken of her. In 2003, on the occasion of the fiftieth anniversary of the move of St. Catharine's from Manhattan to the Bronx, those words spoke of her influence as the first principal of the newly constructed Bronx-based school. Remembering those days, one alumna remarked, "I was impressed with her absolute class." Fifty years later, as he spoke at her funeral, Msgr. Robert Ritchie recalled how much that same quality (which he described as a gracious elegance) impressed him when, as a young priest, he first met Sr. Etheldreda.

Style was another of the words used by Dr. Ann Grow (formerly, Sr. Mary Vianney) of Mercy College, to describe Sr. Etheldreda. Speaking of her early teaching career at St. Catharine Academy, Dr. Grow said: "The first two years I was there, Sr. Etheldreda was the principal, and she created an aura, a climate of excitement and charm. Later, as president of Mercy College, she had that same effect on the college – there was style to whatever she did."

During the eight years Sr. Etheldreda

served as Mercy College president she was best known for her warmth and charismatic leadership style, which, like her years at SCA, built a community spirit and sense of common purpose in students, faculty and staff.

Professor McMahon, however, was not referring to any of these beautiful words when she spoke into the microphone. Instead, she was speaking of the words in a document written some years earlier by Sr. Mary Joannes Christie, Shakesperean scholar and elder sister of Sr. Mary Etheldreda. Four pages, written in the neat penmanship of Sr. Joannes, chronicled high points in the life of Sr. Etheldreda.

From Sr. Joannes' perspective, it was a "high-spirited young woman" who, in January, 1929, began the process of becoming a Sister of Mercy. At the time, she was not yet seventeen years old, and ahead of her lay 80 years of service, predominantly in education.

As Professor McMahon's voice danced lightly over the words of Sr. Joannes, sites and situations were recalled, where the leadership of Sr. Etheldreda had left its mark. Then, as emotion peaked and energy subsided, her life was summed up by the words of an unidentified author:

Capacity for love is the only indispensable foundation for holiness – not talent, not charm, but the ability to love someone or something more than self.

And then, there were no more words... ❖

In Memory of

Sr. Mary Etheldreda Christie, RSM

Principal, St Catharine Academy 1953-1959

Those wishing to memorialize Sr. Mary Etheldreda's life are asked to provide a gift that supports the education of Catharinites, something very close to her heart. Contributions to the SCA's Tuition Assistance and Scholarship Fund in memory of Sr. Mary Etheldreda would be greatly appreciated.
